Stock Exchange Automation and trading speed are increasingly important aspects of competition among financial markets. Yet we know little about how changing a market